Dear Mr. Cox and Mr. LaSerto:

As an NRA life member and NRA-ILA supporter, I suggest that the organization is mistaken in opposing Senator Wayne Allard's proposed Browns Canyon Wilderness Area in central Colorado.

I live in the adjacent county. I have hunted and fished in Browns Canyon a number of times, and I fully support its wilderness designation so that it will remain a high-quality outdoor recreation area.

As a designated federal wilderness, Browns Canyon would remain completely open to hunting. And although I am 55 years old, I am not so feeble as to require motorized access everywhere I go hunting. Nor should most hunters. Colorado has plenty of heavily roaded public lands for those who do.

NRA-ILA is a powerhouse on Second Amendment rights. In this land-use decision, however, I suggest that you need to gather more facts and information from members in the area involved.

Sincerely,

Chas S. Clifton
